

CAMERON

OF LOCHIEL

DONALD DUBH, of whom little other than that contained in the tradition record is known. He is named in the patronymics of his sons and grandsons and was father of :

1. Allan MacDonald dubh, Captain of Clan Cameron, (see below).
2. Ewen MacDonald dubh, the substitute heir to his brother Allan in a charter dated 29 November 1472.

ALLAN MACDONALD DUBH, is styled as Captain of Clan Cameron in a charter in his favour by Celestine, Lord of Lochalsh, dated 29 November 1472, granting to him the office of constable of the castle of Strome with the 12 merk lands of Kysrener, in the lordship and earldom of Ross, to be held by himself the heirs male of his body by Mariota de Insulis, his spouse, which failing, by his brother Ewen MacDonald, and his heirs male.¹ He is said to have been k. in a raid he led on MackIntosh lands in circa 1480 but there is no evidence for this and he was certainly dead by July of 1492, when his son Ewen had succeeded. He was father of :

1. Ewen MacAllan, Captain of Clan Cameron, (see below).
2. John, styled as "John Allani Donaldi" when witness to his brother Ewen's charter for the lands of Locheil dated 26 August 1492.
3. Donald Allanson, witness to a Bond of Surety subscribed by his brother Ewen on 7 October 1527.
4. William Roy Allanson, witness to a Bond of Surety subscribed by his brother Ewen on 7 October 1527.

EWEN MACALLAN, CAPTAIN OF CLAN CAMERON, succeeded his father by 29 July 1492, when he had a charter from Alexander de Insulis of Lochalsh for 14 merks worth of lands in Lochalsh.¹ He had a further charter from this Alexander for the lands of Locheil dated 26 August 1492,² and is then styled as Eugenio Allani Donaldi, or “Ewen, son of Allan, son of Donald.” He had a Precept under the Privy Seal for his infeftment in the liferent of the lands of Glenloy, Loch Arkaig, Locheil and numerous others on 11 April 1539, and d. by 12 October 1553, when the Queen granted his lands of Strome, Corpach, Torcastle, Locheil and others to George Gordon, Earl of Huntly.³ Traditionally, he is said to have been a supporter of John Moidertachd of Glengarry firstly, in the defences of his Chiefship of Clan Donald and then against encroachments by the Grants which resulted in them meeting in open conflict in 1544, at the battle which became known as Blar-na-leine, or “field of the shirts” due their having discarded their plaids and fought in their shirts due to the heat. He is said to have been one of those brought to formal justice for participation and was executed with MacDonnel of Keppoch and others in 1546. From evidence cited above, he was certainly alive in April 1539 and dead by October 1553. He was father of :

1. DONALD CAMERON, was a natural son and in whose favour a precept of legitimation was issued on 15 June 1500.⁴ He had a gift of the non-entries and ward of the lands of Knoydart which had fallen to the King on the death of Sorle MacIain dated 12 July 1536, and is then styled as son and apparent heir to Ewen Allanson, Captain of Clan Cameron,⁵ and was served heir to his father in the lands of Glennevis and Knockdort on 4 May 1537. He m. Anne, daughter of John Grant of Freuchie, (c/m 22 October 1520), d. vita patris prior to 3 May 1538, when his father had the gift of the ward of his son, Ewen Donaldson, and was father of :

He became caught up in the religious intrigues of his time and siding with the Catholic Earl of Huntly, he fell victim to his fall with his estates being forfeited to the crown and gifted to the courtier Sir Alexander Hay who split them up and portioned them off to various parties including Maclaine of Lochbuy. Apparently as a means to try to regain proper title he was retoured

DONALD CAMERON, OF LOCHEIL, is perhaps the best known Chief of the Clan as is generally referred to as the "Gentle Locheil." Despite being unsupportive of Charles Edward at their first meeting and advising him to "go home," when other Chiefs pledged their support and the venture was destined to continue, his conscience would not allow him to remain at home and so, with reluctance, he raised and led the Cameron regiment throughout the campaign. He was present at the end of the affair at the battle of Culloden where he had both his ankles broken by grapeshot and was carried from the field by clansmen. He and his wife and family sought refuge in France; he was included in the attainders and his estates were forfeited and annexed to the crown and d. at Paris in October of 1748.³ He m. Anne, daughter of Sir James Campbell, 5th Baronet of Auchinbreck, (she d. in December of 1761 "of a consumption brought on by misfortunes of the family"), and by her he was father of :
